From the Boston Vesperus. TEMPERANCE DRINKING SONG.

BY CHARLES FOUNTAIN. WE need no belping from without, To make us kind and true; Our hearts are clear and fresh and stout, They warm us through and through: We call not him full man who gains His blitheness from the vine, The glad blood dances through our vein-

Without the aid of wine: Our joy's our own; no fairy gold From cheating wine we borrow, To find in place of wealth untold But poor dead leaves to-morrow No blood of grapes our spirits stirs,

Old poets and philosophers Sit with us many a one: Plato supreme, Pythagoras, Souls of right god-like ken, Diogenes and he who was The wisest named of men:-Hurrah, my friends, a health, a health, To the immortal spirit! Whose freedom is the dearest wealth

Our wit can go alone;

We conquer, not inherit. Our souls undrugged full freely burn With unborn fire benign, Without a miracle we turn Our water into wine;

For love to meanest things imparts Some glories of his own. And there is wine in our good hearts To warm a heart of stone; We do not ask for any spell To rouse a wilder motion; Of their own strength, they heave and swell

As freely as the ocean. We meet not in a hot, close room, Giving our souls the lie, But, where the first spring-flowers bloom,

Under the beauteous sky, Beside the gushing brook we sit, As when we children were, And drink with hallowed hands from it, And bless the sweet, fresh air; The birds sing for us, and the beasts And every living creature, Sits down with us for these are feasts Of universal Nature.

Neurology-Considered.
To the Editor of The Tribune:

One of the reasons for which I have long been a admirer of your paper, above some of its cotempo raries, has been, the large amount of Scientific in telligence which I have found in its columns from time to time. Nor can I doubt but that the exten of patronage bestowed on it by an enlightened community will amply compensate its Editors for the disposition which has been so apparent in its col umns to please and benefit the public by the diffusion of that kind of information which the mass of the people so much need. And, while you have evinced such a commendable willingness to give " an open ring and fair play" to a difference o views in your paper on philosophical questions may I ask for a little space, in which to offer a few remarks on one or two articles which have appeared in your paper recently, on what has been yelepec "the Science of Neurology."

Having heard each of Dr. Buchanan's Lectures delivered recently in this city, I may be supposed to have some tolerable knowledge of what he habeen able to make known of his theory. I have also read a book of which he is the author, and which may be supposed to afford all that information necessary to enable a candid inquirer to form a correct judgement of his claims to his having added "a new and extraordinary agent" to our "therapeutic list." Indeed, Dr. B. not only assumes the credit of having ADDED a " new agency to our therapeutic list," but in his book, and throughout the course of his Lectures, he labored with considerable assiduity to make it appear that the agency by which he operates is totally distinct from any and every thing heretofore known under the name of Mesmerism. And hence, a writer in The Tribune of Nov. 16, says:

"Dr. Buchanan has nothing to do with Mesmerism:—be regards the proceedings of Mesmer and his followers as eminently unphilosophical."

Again, he says:

"Dr. B. has taken an entirely new field, in the scientific world, and enjoys the enviable distinction of having brought forth a new and wonderful science." And other similar assumptions are put forth in the same article, and, indeed, they are made in similar terms to those used by Dr. B. both in his book and in his public lectures. And many, we know, attended his recent course in this city, expecting to see and hear something in support of this extraordinary claim; but I scarcely need to add, that they were disappointed. His attempts in support of this claim, proved an utter failure Dr. B. said nothing, nor did he do any thing, which had the least conceivable tendency to show that his assumed "new agent," was any thing more or less than what has long been known, under the name of Mesmerism. Possibly he may himself fancy, and he may make others believe that it is different, but we are confident that this belief will last no longer than the time when such persons shall have become fully acquainted with this subject, For instance, who does not know that from ages past the hand of "the seventh sen' has been proverbial for the cure of "king's evil?" and, from immemorial time, diseases have been known to be cured, in certain cases, merely, by manipulating the head or other parts of the system. And Dr. B. can no more prove that his " new system" is any thing different from that exerted by the "seventh son," and by every magnetizer, from Mesmer to the present time, than he can prove that his own respiratory organs are made of different materials from those of other people. And as to operations on the separate organs of the brain, by the mere touch of the hand, it was done in this city long before the name of Dr. Buchanan had been heard of here. For the truth of this statement, I might refer to a score or more of intelligent physicians, and other scientific gentlemen, who were invited to witness a series of what were called Phreno-Magnetic experiments at the New-York Museum, in the summer of 1841. And when Dr. B. comes here assuming to have discovered a new agency by which he does the very same thing, we have some reasons for wishing to know on what foundation his claims are based. As far as I know, a large majority of those who heard his lectures are familiar, more or less, with Mesmerism, and they are united in the opinion that Dr B.'s claim to the discovery of a "new agency" is founded either in ignorance of what Mesmerism is, or upon an unjustifiable desire for taking to himself the credit of a discovery he never made. This same agency was not only known to Mesmer and Puysegar, but to the Egyptians three thousand years ago, as any one may satisfy himself by consulting the Brit. Encyc. and also Dr. Elliotson's great work on Human Physiology. Whatever advances Dr. B. or any other person may have made in the science of physiology by means of this agency is another question altogether; but that what he calls neugure is nothing more nor less than what has. heretofore, been called Mesmerism, is susceptible of the clearest demonstration; and, in fact, it is what no one doubts who is at all familiar with

New-York, Nov. 18, 1842. EARLY WINTER.-The earth is covered with snew six inches deep, and sleigh bells are jingling merrily in our streets. We hear of like evidences of winter both East and West. Between Lockport and Rochester it is said the snow is more than a foot deep. This is very remarkable, almost unprecedented for this region. [Buff. Adv., 22d.

Texas-San Jacinto-Houston, &c. 'Nothing extenuate, nor set down aught in malice.' To the Editor of The Tribune Your paper of yesterday contains a report of a lecture on Texas, delivered at the Tabernacle by Rev. Mr. Perry, on which I wish to make a few remarks through your columns. In doing so I shall endeavor to confine myself to such facts as are treated of by him which fell under my ewn observation-I, too, having been somewhat engaged in the scenes which he describes. I shall pass over that part of his lecture preceding the battle of San Jacinto, for six days previous to which I had been detained a prisoner by Gen Santa Ana, having been taken at Harrisburgh, and therefore must be allowed to have obtained some knowledge respecting Santa Ana and those under his immediate command. Mr. P. states that Santa Ana's forces numbered, with the reinforcement which he received on the morning of the general engagement, 1,700. This is not so. On the morning of the day previous to that of the general engagement Santa Ana had but 650 at most under his command, of what appeared to me to be the flower of his division, well officered, armed and equipped, and well disciplined: these, with the reinforcement, never admitted to be over 500, made his whole number engaged in the action 1,250 -It is not necessary to my purpose to entertain you or your readers with the particulars of my escape from the Mexicans and entrance into the Texas camp; suffice it to say, that about 12 o'clock on the day previous to that of the general engagement, after several very narrow escapes from both Mexican and Texan small shot, which played any hing but desirable music about my ears, I found myself in the presence of Gen. Houston, who received me very cordially and politely. I found he sad gained his present (and to the Mexicans unexpected) position by a forced march, crossing the duffalo Bayou two miles below Harrisburgh. where, I was informed, he made a pithy but eloquent speech to his men, in which he stated that ne knew he had been censured for retreating, and not giving the enemy battle before, but that they should ' now have fighting enough." At the counil alluded to by Mr. P. there was much murmuring and censure cast upon Houston by some of the fficers, who, it appears, were apprehensive of a further retreat, to which he made no reply. Events proved that in retreating he had not wisely calcuated, although appearances at the time were much gainst him. He knew that the salvation of Texas tepended wholly upon the little band then under is command, and should they by any miscalculaion or hasty step, be dispersed or cut to pieces by he almost overwhelming force of the enemy, then a victorious pursuit of them, Texas would be iretrievably lost, and the many families of women and children, who had been obliged to leave their omes, and who were scattered about in advance of the army, would be exposed to the tender mer ies of the blood-thirsty victors. Besides, his re reat had induced those of his men who were faintnearted or cowardly to leave him, by deserting; so hat during the week previous to his attacking the nemy, from 1,000 his army had been reduced to ess than 300; but with these he felt confident of uccess whenever an opportunity should offe .-Accordingly, as described by Mr. P., Houston adanced to attack the Mexican entrenchments, Col. Sherman leading on the second division Houston advancing with the first himself. After in advancing fight of 17 minutes, Houston, haveg had one horse shot under him, remounted, and shouted the words "Charge! Remember the Alano and Fanning! !" The men, yelling and screamng the words, rushed with clubbed rifles and knife n hand, impetuously and irresistibly over the enrenchments. The Mexicans gave way so generally and simultaneously, that Houston, who had been wounded by a ball in the ankle, suspecting apprehended, and was driving them from it-the men still rushing on in pursuit, were not recalled. That there was some cruelty exercised by some of the Texans there is no doubt; but not to the exent implied by Mr. P. Indeed it would have been strange had there not been-with the treachrous massacre of Fanning and his brave men fresh before their eyes-crying, as it were, for vengeance on their murderers. The 400 mentioned by Mr. P. were attempting to rally under Col. Almonte, (who is now Minister from Mexico to the U. S.) but who, finding that he could not make a stand with them, ordered them to throw down their arms, and, with himself, surrendered, and were prought into camp. Santa Ana was taken the next day, near the bank of Vince's Bayou, (a trib-

an ambush, called a halt, which I believe, in conequence of the noise, was heard but by a very ew of his men. Gen. Rush rode up and informed nim that Sherman had already gained possession of the woods, from which an ambush only could be utary of the Buffalo,) about ten miles from the bat. le-ground. Mr. P. would imply that there was a pretty general slaughter of the Mexicans. I think the above statement shows there was not. In the first place here were but 1,250 Mexicans-300, he states. fell on the first fire of the Texans-there were upward of 500 prisoners taken to my knowledgesixteen minutes elapsed from the first discharge of the Texans until the Mexicans gave way, during which the Texans were not idle with their rifles, so that there could not have been over 400 killed

Again: Mr. P. contradicts himself;-he insinutes that Houston is a coward-calls him "a drunken brute," and says that he called a halt in the heat of the action, assigning as an excuse "that blood enough had been shed." Now, who ever heard of a "drunken brute" wishing to stop the effusion of blood and cruelty in the heat of battle, especially under such circumstances? Such feelings are commonly the attributes of brave men.

Again: Mr. P. says that Santa Ana was " all courtesy and suavity,-Houston, rough and de-mocratic in his bearing." This, with the exception of his democracy, I do not hesitate to pronounce wholly false. I was present and within hearing during their first interview, and Houston's manner toward his prisoner was that of a magnanimous man and a gentleman-polite, affable, easy, and yet dignified-and I thought rather too complimentary. In this assertion I think I shall be borne out by any and every one who has had occasion to come in contact with Gen. Houston in a friendly and peaceable manner, when not under the influence of liquor. That he has eccentricities, and has indulged in habits of dissipation, I am free to admit; but I doubt very much if there is a man to be found who can say that Sam. Houston touched a drop of spirituous liquor between the 1st of March and the 1st of May, 1836. And if Mr. P. knows any thing of the Army Orders at that time, he must be aware that Gen Houston issued strict orders that all spirituous liquors should be destroyed wherever found ;- in pursuance of which order, I saw a considerable quantity destroyed at St. Felipe.

In conclusion, Messrs. Editors, (for I fear I have already trespassed on your columns,) permit me to say that I am at a loss to assign a motive for the (what appears to me malicious) insinuations and misrepresentations in regard to the character of Gen. Houston by the Rev. gentleman. TRUTH.

PEARLS .- Pearls are the morbid secretions of an oyster. Several species of bivalved shellfish produce them; but the greater number, the finest and the largest are procured from the Meleagrina margaritifera, Lamarck, a native of the sea, and of various coasts. The pearls are situated either in the body of the oyster or they lie loose between it and the shell, er lastly they are fixed to the latter by a kind of neck; and it is said they do not appear until the animal has reached its fourth year. Ceylon continues to be, as it was in the time of the Romans, the most productive of these ornaments. In the last century several of great size were found in the rivers of the counties of Tyrone and Donegal in Ireland.

LAW OF PATENTS .- The Commissioner thus explains the provisions of the late act of Congress on this subject :-

1. The new law does not alter the fee or duration of patents for such objects as have been hitherto patentable-the amount of which is still thirty dollars and the term fourteen years. This new law extends protection to a new class of cases, viz.: designs embracing patterns for silk, woolen, and cotton fabrics; for busts, statues, or bas relief, or composition in alto or basso relievo; such protection having been granted by foreign countries, and not till the present law by the United States.

2. The new law extends the privilege of renewal of lost patents to all those granted before the fire of Dec. 1836; the former law limiting it to those actually lost subsequent to the fire, and before recording a new, leaving the inventor remediless.

3. American ministers, consuls &c., residing abroad, are now authorized to administer eaths to inventors. By the former law such functionaries were not permitted to perform this act-thus subjecting inventors to great inconvenience.

4. The Secretary of the Treasury is now au thorized to repay money paid into the Treasury for the Patent Office by mistake-thus precluding the necessity of making special Application to Congress for relief.

5. The new law forbids, under a penalty, stamping the word "patent" on articles vended where no patent has been obtained, and compels patentees to stamp on the articles vended by them the date of the patent, thus affording the public information of the duration of the patent.
